

Have you or your partner recently been diagnosed with dementia?

U-M researchers are seeking couples, with one partner that has been recently diagnosed with dementia, to understand their daily experiences.

What is involved?

- one 60- to 90-minute face-to-face interview
- 7 days of brief telephone surveys
- 4 days of collecting saliva samples

We are examining markers of stress and health that are found in saliva. We will not use the saliva samples to look at DNA (genes) or test for any illegal drugs.

Who can participate?

- One partner received a diagnosis of dementia by a medical provider within approximately the last 5 years and has some early symptoms
- You & your partner are currently married or living together as a couple
- You & your partner are both able to produce saliva
- You & your partner live within approximately 60 miles of Ann Arbor

Participants will both receive up to $100 as a thank you for participating.
